Discovering the Web’s Edge

Web 2.0 Summit focuses on emerging business and technology developments that utilize the web as a platform and defines how the web will drive business in the future. What began as a focused gathering on the implications of the Web becoming a platform has transformed into an industry event focused on the latest Internet innovations—the services, applications, businesses, and models—that are redefining the way companies do business and how people live.

Last year, in 2006, Web 2.0 Summit highlighted the widespread disruptions the web has created in traditional business models, as well as the opportunities those disruptions created and how that has affected both the giants and the industry as a whole. This year, Web 2.0 Summit will delve into nascent innovation and attempt to parse the only-just-beginning-to-be-discovered territory at the edges of the Web. Topics will slip past the mainstream and follow instead the road less traveled, the path taken by visionaries and those inspired by forces other than the tried and true.

Produced in partnership by CMP Media, O’Reilly Media, Inc. and Program Chair, John Battelle, Web 2.0 Summit features one-on-one interviews, keynote-level talks, and issue-driven panels that discuss the next step in the development of the Internet economy.

Topics covered at the 2006 Web 2.0 Summit included:

- Defining Web 3.0: What’s Next
- Collision of the Titans: Publishers v. Platforms
- Collective Intelligence or The Madness of Crowds?
- What Might Go Wrong In Web 2.0?
- Is The IPO Culture Over?
- Launchpad 2.0
- The Tiered Internet: A Debate
- Web 2.0 In China
- Disrupting The Disruptors: Incumbents Strike Back
- Privacy and Trust: Who Owns Your Data?
