

DESIGN, DEVELOP, DISRUPT

Fueled by a host of new business models, development models, and design patterns, the web is back at center stage. Innovative startups are building out sites and applications at a remarkable rate, while the Fortune 500 are re-evaluating their internet strategies to avoid being outpaced. This innovation and creativity is driving investment, growth, and opportunity.

Today, all functions of business are driving purchase decisions, from developers and designers to the business strategists applying Web 2.0 to their work. Web 2.0 Expo will focus on the evolution of the web design and development market and address the models and methods for building the next generation web. Web 2.0 Expo is the first broad-based conference and tradeshow for the rapidly growing ranks of designers and developers, product managers, entrepreneurs, VCs, marketers and business strategists who are truly part of the Web 2.0 ecosystem.

Produced in partnership by CMP Media and O'Reilly, the event is inspired by the exclusive Web 2.0 Conference, which sold out months in advance this year and generated over 7,000 requests to attend. Web 2.0 Expo expands on the audience and themes of the original conference, and will feature three major components: a five-track educational conference, including both traditional seminar formats and elements of peer-to-peer learning; a major tradeshow showcasing Web 2.0 tools, trends, and technologies; and strategic networking events fostering dialogue between internet entrepreneurs, venture capitalists, and business development executives.

“Web 2.0 is one of the big ideas that’s shaping the industry right now. But every big idea needs implementation. We saw the need for a second event that focuses on how to actually build effective Web 2.0 applications. We’re tackling not just Web 2.0 as strategy but also design, programming, operations, and viral marketing—the elements of execution that will ultimately separate the winners from the me-too companies in the space.”

—Tim O'Reilly, Founder and CEO, O'Reilly Media
